DOB: 20/09/2004

I am currently enrolled into the University of Technology, Sydney (UTS) to begin studying a Bachelor of Nursing. I completed my AIN undergraduate degree throughout the completion of year 11 and 12 through VET at Liverpool Hospital. This consisted of completing a series of placements over my course gaining a range of skills in different specialties.

Skills

- Assisting Patient with Activities of Basic Living (ADL's); toileting, Showering, ambulating and eating
- Assisting with Patient mobility
- Basic wound and pressure injury care
- Documentation and reporting
- Taking and recording of Patient Observations; Temperature, pulse rate, respiratory rate, blood glucose level and blood pressure

Experience

Previous Placement Experience

All Placements completed at Liverpool Hospital

I have completed a placement in Aged care/ Geriatrics which developed my skills learnt in simulation into practice. This consisted of assisting patients with their ADL's with additionally being both a physical and emotional support network for patients and their families. Furthermore, working with patients that have severe levels of pressure injuries while ensuring these do not exacerbate.

At an additional placement, I was placed in Colorectal and Upper GI which allowed me to gain an extreme level of skills from observing the RN's in caring for a stoma's and applying the knowledge gained from that into being able to improve my care for those patients. This ward expanded my knowledge on documentation including progress notes and their style of writing them particularly for this specialty of Nursing.
